MARSEILLE PROVENCE, A SERIOUSLY ATTRACTIVE SOUTHERN METROPOLIS

With its outstanding location and thriving economy, tourism and culture, France's second city, Marseille, has been part of rapid Mediterranean and international development for the last 10 years.

As the capital of Provence, Marseille's ambition is founded on its remarkable potential and key advantages.

With over 70.000 students, including 4.000 PhD students and researchers, Aix Marseille University (AMU) is now France's largest university and the no. 2 French state centre for scientific research. This rich growth sector is a major research hub in Europe thanks to key expertise in fields such as immunology, oncology, clinical trials, microbiology, neuroscience and ICT.

With 10 centres of economical excellence, Marseille and its region dominate mostly innovative sectors.

Over the past few years, tourism has been established as one of the major pillars of economic development in Marseille. As the 2013 European Capital of Culture, Marseille was the 5th European tourist destination, in part due to its exceptional surroundings with the Calanques National Park, MuCEM, the Frioul archipelago...

The ICCA (International Congress and Convention Association) rankings Marseille as the 2nd French congress city, and 74th internationally.

The city of Marseille obtained in 2014 the price «Congress and city of the Year» for the reception of APM Convention in Marseille Chanot.

THEY HAVE CHOSEN MARSEILLE CHANOT

“ Choosing Marseille Chanot has been a complete success, shared by the entire team. Moreover, the destination in itself ensured a large record of registration thanks to its attractions. The layout of the exhibition spaces and the catering facilities for 1.600 people in the Palais des Événements, right across from the Palais des Congrès, contributed to the fluid and coherent management of our convention. ”

Guy Prinderre, General Commissioner of National days of sterilization (1.800 persons, Palais des Congrès)

“ Marseille Chanot, like the destination itself, guaranteed us optimal media coverage. Especially for an event like the UNEF Convention with more than 1.000 participants, we needed a site that could accommodate significant numbers. A key point that made our decision the right one. ”

Jean Baptiste Prévost, President, National Students' Union Convention (800 persons, Palais des Congrès)

“ As the world's largest training organisation for French-speaking managers, we chose Marseille for our 3.000-strong biennial convention. As 2013 European Capital of Culture, the city was the obvious choice. Marseille Chanot offered us solutions that fully corresponded with what we were looking for and proved themselves very flexible in adapting spaces to meet the needs of the convention. The teams at Marseille Chanot know how to choose the right local partners to create the perfect conditions for a successful event - something of a rarity in Europe. ”

Xavier Ouvrard, Chairman of APM
